Our Story

Dove and Donkey delights in curated objects and textiles for the home. Founded by an interior designer with a passion for spaces and an obsession with quality, we were born of a desire for something unique; unique colors, textures, and pieces that can be combined effortlessly. We believe design can be thoughtful and playful, fresh but never dated, and always inspired by you. Coming from a place of collaboration, we approach sustainability and production with a respect for both our partners and the environment.

Mission

Focused on thoughtful craftsmanship and sustainable practices, we strive to create pieces of the highest quality. We believe in design without rules, and in paying homage to the great indoors.

Materials / Techniques

Dove and Donkey products are designed in Boston. We then seek out small factories and cooperatives that have a positive working environment, as well as equitable pay practices. The hand-dyed cottons and hand-painted stripes in our collection come from Casa Almacen, a family-owned factory and textile business based in Argentina. We work with Millma & Qaytu, based in Peru, to source our fair trade alpaca yarns and several of our knit products. All yarn is hand-spun and hand-dyed- it takes days to spin 1 kilogram of yarn, 2 days to dye the yarn, and 2 days for it to dry. It takes artisan partners 2-3 weeks to knit each blanket. We also work with Textialpaca, an environmentally-friendly factory based in Peru, on our other knit products. Artisan partners at Textialpaca create the fringes on our Lacey, Woolly Mammoth and Space Between Us throws by hand. They also hand-embroider our Hey Baby throws, and hand-sew the interior whipstitches in our Patched Up bedcover.

Community Involvement

Dove and Donkey's Love Triangle shop sells gently used and sample products, with all profits going to a featured organization (or two) each season. For gently used items, profits include the sale price minus any shipping and/or cleaning expenses for vintage pieces. For sample, slightly imperfect, or discontinued pieces, the profit is calculated minus the cost of goods and shipping. This season, Dove and Donkey is donating all Love Triangle proceeds to Artists for Humanity and Urbanity Dance, both of which promote accessibility, foster compassion and create positive environments for growth in Boston. Dove and Donkey has also collaborated with both organizations in building the company: talented teens at Artists For Humanity designed the logo concept and Urbanity dancers modeled products throughout the collection.

FOUNDER: SHEILA GALLIGAN

After many years in the world of interior design, Sheila saw the need for a collection of home textiles and objects that are unique in texture and design yet multifunctional. She founded Dove and Donkey with a desire to bring such products to the market-place. She believes that the relationship with the collaborator is as important as the end product and seeks to work with people who share this vision.

FOUNDER: JADINE GREENAWAY

Hailing from Montserrat, West Indies, Jadine migrated to the U.S. at the age of 8. Though she swiftly integrated into her new home, she brought much of her island culture with her. With a great love for costume design and production, she is actively involved in international carnivals and the Caribbean music scene. Her keen eye for detail and quality led her to Barneys New York, where she spent many years advising a wide range of clients. Jadine's experience in the luxury goods market, coupled with her unique sense of style, made Dove and Donkey the perfect collaboration.

Made of suri alpaca and wool, this throw is perfection. We love it draped on a bed, or wrapped around your shoulders. The rare suri fiber gives this throw a lustrous, silky feel, and the chunky fringe takes on a life of its own!

SUSTAINABILITY

We seek to work with organizations and factories that care about the people they employ and the communities in which they operate. Our partner factories also work to reduce waste and energy use in manufacturing.

We are conscious of the resources that go into making our products. Our goal is to create sustainable goods that are kind to both people and the planet.
